Projects Get Boost From D.C. Council

The long-awaited development of Bayshore Park, Gellert Park's recreation building and Civic Center facilities for the handicapped have received a boost from the Daly City Council.

The council, meeting in a brief special session before councilmen were due to attend League of California Cities' sessions this week, took two separate actions Saturday to speed up the projects.

It hired KCA Engineers of San Francisco to design the 3.5-acre Bayshore Park. Completion of the design and engineering work for the site behind San Mateo County's Midway Village housing project will take about 60 days.

The engineering contract will be for about $6,500, according to Ed Tomasello, Daly City's recreation superintendent, who has worked closely with park development.

Tomasello said he met with Bayshore area residents last week to discuss plans for the park.

The park facility, to be funded with $50,000 in Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA) monies and $37,000 from the state, will include a baseball diamond, playfield, children's play area and picnic facilities.

Development of the park has been held up for years, due to the slow pace of city-county negotiations concerning use of the site. A final agreement allowing the city to develop the park was signed last week, Tomasello said.

Tomasello hopes for completion in the spring, but cautioned it will depend on the weather and the finding of the engineers on grading needs.

The council also authorized City Manager David Rowe to sign a contract with the U. S. Economic Development Agency for a grant of $308,654 for development of Gellert Park's recreation building and $42,940 for construction of facilities for the handicapped at the Civic Center.

Another project, $152,685 for construction of a retaining wall at the city corporation yard, was disallowed by EDA because of a possibility of a cost overrun, according to City Engineer David Macabee.

The total grant for projects within the Daly City boundaries was $1.6 million, with the lion's share, $970,000, going to the North San Mateo County Sanitation District.

Jefferson Elementary School District (JESD) had requested the total $1.6 million grant for reconstruction of Crocker.

Compost King's Efforts Bear Rich Rewards

By NANCY STANCILL

Colma's compost king picked up a pitchfork and gently turned the moist pile of sticks, leaves, grass, leftover food and other debris.

As a wave of steam wafted up, Ralph Damon looked pleased with himself.

"Those little devils are going to work," he said with an extra flourish to his pitchfork.

The man with the grizzled gray beard and the wheezy voice was referring to the bacteria and fungi that will turn the compost pile into the "perfect fertilizer."

Damon's huge wire basket that holds the compost pile sits at the edge of his yard on 87th Street in unincorporated Colma.

Behind the basket lies an eighth of an acre that bears rich testimonial to the rewards of composting.

The 70-year-old's tomato plants soar towards the sky, while his corn in mid-semester bears fluffy, fat ears that make the mouth water.

There is a variety of other plants and flowers. In season, Damon grows loganberries, boysenberries, artichokes, broccoli, cauliflower, squash, spinach, chard, four kinds of lettuce and red onions that weigh up to two pounds apiece.

In fact, there's little that won't grow in the rich, dark loam that composting has created from Colma's native sandy soil.

"I put seeds in the ground and they just pop out," Damon remarked with relish. "I don't cultivate at all. I don't have to."

Damon began composting, turning all of the organic matter he can find, into the "black tea" of compost, about 37 years ago.

That was when he and his wife, Margaret, moved into their small white residence at 6 Village Lane. They have lived there ever since.

Damon was born on a farm in Vancouver, Washington. He took note as his father used composting to produce "the best asparagus in the county. The women would wait in line at the market for its delivery."

Like his father, Damon believes in "returning everything to the soil that was once alive."

"Nature provides that in time, everything will be broken down and destroyed," he said of composting.

School Violence 'On the Rise'

By NANCY STENSON

Violence in Daly City intermediate and high schools is increasing, Dennis M. Pinnatore, Daly City Police Department juvenile officer, told Jefferson Elementary School District trustees Monday night.

Pinnatore, who accompanied Daly City Police Lt. Thomas Culley to the meeting to respond to a recent charge that police are not patrolling district schools, reported an instance last week in which the principal of Fernando Rivera School allegedly was severely bitten by a girl.

Pinnatore said the principal, who had been trying to break up a fight involving two girls, allegedly sustained injuries serious enough to require hospitalization.

In another instance, a youth allegedly attacked another with brass knuckles shaped from a table fork, the officers said.

"A recreation director who was attacked by a youth lost his spleen," Pinnatore said.

According to Pinnatore, problems concern both the use of weapons on school grounds and extortion. "One boy extorted $930 from another boy," Pinnatore said.

Gang fights are another problem, Pinnatore added. "A student can call friends from San Francisco and in no time 250 kids will be assembled ready to fight," he said.

The officer said students come from San Francisco's Hunters Point area, as well as other nearby locations. "They come from all groups — blacks, Filipino and Caucasian."

Fights also arise when kids from one side of the city have an argument with kids from the other side, Pinnatore said.

"You also have instances when an older brother or sister will call on friends to back up a younger family member in a fight," he said.

Pinnatore suggested the board consider suspending a youngster on a first charge of assault with a weapon on school grounds and expulsion for a second offense.

"Luckily, so far no one has been killed," Pinnatore said.

Trustee David Parker said one problem with expelling a student is that he is left without supervision to do what he wants. Parker said that expelled students often return to school grounds and continue to make trouble.

Broadmoor resident Nancy Thomas, however, told the board that after having two of her children attacked, she wants the "disrupters" off the school premises.

Thursday Meeting in Daly City

Session Set to Resolve General Plan Disputes

A lengthy, four-way opinion session is expected Thursday for the members of the Daly City Planning Commission, General Plan Citizens Advisory Committee, the city staff and a consultant's team.

The two committees and representatives of the city and Ironside and Associates Planning Consultants will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the City Center Building (personnel office meeting room) to try to hammer out a broad agreement on the proposed general plan.

The purpose of the study session is for the various representatives to discuss areas of conflict that have surfaced concerning the proposed document that attempts to guide the city's future development.

The planning commission is scheduled to recommend for adoption a new general plan at its Oct. 12 meeting. Then it will be the subject of further hearings and action by the City Council.

A public hearing which planners opened several weeks ago will continue at the Oct. 12 session; but the commission hopes to speed up the process with the Thursday session.

The study session will focus on several areas of disagreement with the recommendations of the consultant and Citizens Advisory Committee that have been expressed by city staffers.

According to Daly City associate planner Tom Miller, the points raised by the city are "relatively minor in the scheme of the whole general plan."

But he said the most important conflict deals with the staff belief that the general plan should commit some areas of the city for future development of low-income housing.

Staff also disagrees with the Citizen's Advisory Committee that strongly advises against future relocation of fire stations.

Miller said the staff believes there should be leeway for relocation, if necessary.

The remainder of the staff recommendations deal with specific uses of small parcels, such as a Serravista area that the committee wants designated as open space and the staff believes should be developed as residential.

The staff recommendations include opinions from the departments of community development, engineering and fire services.

The citizens' committee, composed of more than 23 residents from all parts of the city, developed its recommendations over a two-year-period of work with the planning consultant.

JCTA on Way Out?

A date for an election which could mean the ouster of the Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association as bargaining agents for 371 Daly City teachers should be set within the next two weeks.

A Daly City chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, Local 3287, has petitioned the Educational Employment Relations Board to decertify JCTA as the exclusive bargaining agent for the Jefferson Elementary School District teachers.

JCTA and the district have failed to reach an agreement on a contract for teachers for both the 1976-77 and 1977-78 school years.

The petition, according to David Wright, treasurer of the local AFT chapter and a teacher at Benjamin Franklin School, was signed by 44.5 per cent of the district's teachers when it was submitted to EERB.

State Group Urges Police Pact Hearing

California's County Supervisors Association has sent a letter to the State Supreme Court requesting that the Daly City-Broadmoor Police Protection District contract matter be given a hearing.

According to San Mateo County Deputy District Attorney George Camerlengo, the Supreme Court has not yet made a decision on whether to consider the much-litigated contract proposal.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn ruled in June that the seven-year contract could not be signed because it does not contain a "reasonable" cancellation clause. The California Court of Appeals recently rejected a petition for a writ to put the contract in effect.

Subsequently, the Broadmoor Police Commission decided to take the matter further, to the Supreme Court.

Camerlengo, who is the legal counsel for the Broadmoor district, requested that the state supervisors' association take a stand in the matter, "to resolve a question that it considers important, the ability of a local agency to enter into a long-term contract."

The association agreed that the matter should have a hearing, Camerlengo said. The letter of support was just received by the deputy district attorney.

Camerlengo believes that it will help the district's case for a hearing, but noted that a brief of opposition to the hearing was just filed by attorney Wayne McFadden.

McFadden, attorney for nine Broadmoor and Daly City residents who oppose the long-term contract, said in his 45-page brief that the previous court action should be upheld.

READY FOR FAIR

Friends of the Daly City Library Book Fair Committee members make final plans for their Harvest Book Fair Oct. 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Garden Court and adjoining areas, Westlake Shopping Center. Truckloads of used books, widely diversified, in good condition and reasonable, plus records, sheet music and cassettes, will be sold. To carry out the harvest theme, a pumpkin will be given to each of the first 12 patrons buying $7.50 or more at the fair. Silent auctions of unusual books are scheduled at 10 and 11 a.m. Helping with the final plans are Denis Schwarzbach, Margaret Kincaid, Alice Barichievich and Virginia Tierney.

School Finance Law Ramifications Told

Figures put out by the state on the effect of the new school finance law may mislead some who have "gracefully accepted cutbacks this year," a leading San Mateo school administrator said.

Dr. Austin R. Sellery, superintendent of the San Mateo Union High School District, says that unless people read the figures over the full term of five years covered by the bill, they can be misunderstood.

Moreover, Dr. Sellery said, there is no assurance that the figures are exact, since they are projections of future economic conditions, are based upon estimates, and are also vulnerable to legislative interpretation of the new law.

In its figures, the Office of the State Legislative Analyst had estimated, after consulting its computer, that under the new law, the San Mateo Union High School District might, in five years, be able to increase its revenue limit by $114 per pupil.

Other area districts would receive comparable gains, the computer indicated.

Dr. Sellery pointed out that nothing could be done for at least a year, and that while there might then be a dollar increase, the inflation factor in the new law is only 1 per cent higher than in the old law.

His information indicates, he said, that in the second year of the operation of the new law, about the best San Mateo can expect is a $9 per pupil increase. Interpretation could cut that back to just $6.

In addition to the inflation factor, he said, the only other source of increasing the revenue limit, beginning in the second year, might be state compensation aid if district enrollment drops more than 1 per cent.

He emphasized that such factors only show the complete uncertainty of just what income can be expected.

Dr. Sellery also pointed out that the new money will not come from the state but is an allowance for increasing the tax rate on local property taxpayers.

"None of this is coming from the state," he said. "All new monies are local."

His district calculations, the administrator added, project an annual budget increase of only about 3 per cent a year. He noted that this percentage is "substantially less than the expected increase in the cost of living."

And with insurance and utility bills "skyrocketing," Dr. Sellery said, his district is preparing for "stringent economy measures to keep within its limited budget."

State Assemblyman Dixon Arnett — who served on the Conference Committee (between Assembly and Senate) on the bill, AB65 — said today that if Dr. Sellery is referring to this year and the next most immediate budget, "he is correct."

"However," Arnett continued, "following that period, there are adjustments in the bill on the expenditure limits, which will provide in the aggregate more dollars for districts like San Mateo in future years."

"Clearly, however, those new dollars come from the property taxpayer in high-wealth districts, as opposed to low-wealth districts, where those increased dollars will come from the state. That is what Serrano-Priest is all about."

Local Leaders Blast Concorde

The announcement in Washington that supersonic transport jets might be allowed to land at San Francisco International Airport was greeted here last week with vows of dismay and opposition.

San Francisco's Mayor George Moscone, members of the city's Airports Commission, and Airports Director Richard Heath vowed the SST will not be allowed to land here.

San Mateo County citizens, who have battled to reduce present noise levels, wondered whether airport management would have enough muscle to refuse the SST when they have never been able to refuse any other aviation action favored by the federal government.

"They cannot discriminate against the SST," said

Dr. Louis Maraviglia of Hillsborough.

A leader in the local Airport Impact Reduction Force, Dr. Maraviglia said President Carter's ruling favoring SST landings apparently would allow local jurisdictions to forbid Concorde landings so long as they do not discriminate against it.

The method of doing this, he said, is to apply the federal noise rule known as "FAR Part 36."

If all other planes which exceed that noise standard are forbidden, he said, the SST could also be forbidden.

"We know there are many planes landing at San Francisco International Airport which do not meet Part 36," Dr. Maraviglia said.

Mrs. Maraviglia, attending a regional airport planning session in Berkeley, agreed that the President's comments are a cause of great concern.

Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, chairman of the House Government Operations Subcommittee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources, said today in Washington he is "deeply disappointed" by President Carter's announced policy.

Ryan, who has been outspoken in his opposition to allowing the Concorde to land in the United States, said the decision "is an environmental insult to the American people."

He asserted that, "Taking the plane as it is, means taking the noisiest aircraft flying."

Ryan, noting that the Concorde is twice as noisy as the next noisiest aircraft in use, said that at takeoff the Concorde produces 119.3 perceived noise decibels.

"This is noise at the level of the threshold of pain," the congressman said. "I cannot understand how the Administration can claim that its proposal is 'designed to protect the health and safety of the American people.'

Guilty Plea in Welfare Case

A 36-year-old Daly City woman who obtained more than $41,000 in illegal welfare benefits during the past 11 years pleaded guilty Thursday to welfare fraud and perjury.

Joann Smith, the mother of four children between the ages of 8 and 18, faces sentencing Nov. 1 before San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Alan W. Haverly.

The court indicated that possible restitution would not exceed $20,191.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Stanley B. Poling said a civil suit would be filed to retrieve the balance.

The case had been pegged by Poling as one of the largest welfare fraud cases in county history. Mrs. Smith had been indicated by the grand jury last June.

Poling said that the defendant has been employed full time as a clerk for Pacific Telephone in San Francisco since 1970. Her net take-home pay at the time of her arrest exceeded $700 a month, he added.

Cancer Unit Picks Leaders

New leaders are taking over the San Mateo County unit of the American Cancer Society.

Lois Mirch, longtime Cancer Society volunteer, is the new president.

Mrs. Mirch helped found the society's recovery program 12 years ago, and has been chairman of the local service and rehabilitation committee.

She pledged an effort to get more volunteers involved in the society's activities during the coming year.

Pay Increase For Teachers

The San Mateo County Board of Education approved wage contracts for teachers and clerical workers last week.

Teachers belonging to the San Mateo County Education Association were granted a 5.94 per cent pay raise. Clerical workers of the County Office Classified Employees organization gave a 5.77 per cent raise.

The Education Office still is negotiating with other classified workers of the California State Employees Association.

The board also set a public meeting for Sept. 28 to interview two candidates, Errol Kern and John Straight, both of Pacifica, who have been recommended by a special nominating committee for consideration in filling a board seat vacated by Elio Fontana.

South San Francisco: Behind Closed Doors

By JANET PARKER
Implications that the South San Francisco City Council recently held an illegal executive session disrupted a public meeting last week and forced City Atty. John Noonan to reveal what he saw occur behind closed doors.

However, his explanation didn't satisfy the residents who made the charge and they attempted to press for further information about that session.

"I found trouble with Mr. Noonan's story," said resident Jim Keegan.

"Mr. Keegan doesn't take my word for it, and he has a right not to," responded Noonan.

Mayor Emanuele Damonte became particularly agitated at the questions fired at the council by resident John Falsarella concerning the executive session. Damonte later apologized.

"We shouldn't get excited, but sometimes when our integrity is questioned, we get a little excited," he said.

The exchange began when Falsarella, a strong opponent of the proposed $8.4 million Oyster Point Marina expansion, complained about an article in the city's fall leisure activities guide, a listing of recreation activities and classes.

The article describes the proposed marina expansion, explains the three phases of work and the projected appearance of the finished product.

He asked City Manager Walter Birkelo five questions, starting with, "Who authorized the publication of this inaccurate and slanted article?"

Birkelo answered each question, explaining he gave the final authorization.

But, the final question, "Was this article and its publication ever discussed and/or approved at an executive session (a closed-door meeting) of the City Council?" was the last straw for Damonte.

"I'm upset with you," Damonte shouted. "I don't even see how you can ask a question like that."

He told Falsarella that he had asked "the wrong question" and demanded to know why he was asking it.

"In my opinion, it's the right question," Falsarella said.

"The problem is you asked it five times," Councilman Terry Mirri interjected. All five questions led up to the premise that an illegal executive session was held. And, Mirri insisted, there was no such session.

"This was never fully discussed in executive session," he said. And, if it was mentioned, it was dropped because it was not a matter for a meeting behind closed doors, he added.

Damonte said he was "upset with this body" if one of the councilmen is discussing the content of executive sessions with the public.

"There's only five of us, and one of us is telling you what is coming out of executive session," Damonte said. "And, I don't think any one of us would do that. You must be guessing."

"If it was discussed again," Falsarella began.

"It was not discussed," Mirri interrupted. He said the councilmen are concerned about such statements that could "taint" their political reputations.

Finally, Noonan attempted to set the record straight.

"This thing is all blown out of proportion as I listen to it," he said. He explained that he had walked into an executive session this summer to discuss a legal matter. The city manager, he said, placed a set of articles for the recreation guide on the table and then pushed them into the center.

One councilman, he said, saw the content of the articles and asked if it was a matter for executive session. Noonan said he responded, "No," and the manager took the articles back.

Warning Against 'Vigilantism'

Vigilantism In America!

Here is a book that should be more widely read, especially by people who storm into meetings of public boards and councils; lest in their zeal they harm the whole process of government.

In Vigilantism In America (Seabury Press, $5.95) Arnold Madison warns against "pseudo-vigilantes who often feel that the end justifies the means."

To attain their ends, they will employ what seems to them to be the most effective method, with little regard for either the existing laws or the basic rights of human beings. And for order, we might add, through business-like methods, which is necessary for progress.

Vigilantes come in all sizes and shapes, but seem to share a curious philosophy for people living in a democracy. They often are fanatically certain they are completely in the right. They dominate public meetings with no understanding of what Magruder's grand old American Government calls "representative democracy."

"IN A representative democracy, the popular will is formulated and expressed through a relatively small group of persons chosen by the people to act as their representatives. These representatives are responsible for the day-to-day conduct of government, and they are accountable to the people for the manner in which they execute that responsibility, especially through periodic elections."

The responsibility for legislation and for its execution does not lie with pressure groups or with watchdog committees or with private individuals.

When such come to think of themselves as the people's representatives they become mighty close to what Madison calls "pseudo-vigilantes." He warns that "whenever any pseudo-vigilante group succeeds, there is always, somewhere, an equivalent loss."

The trouble with such groups, as Madison writes, is that they cannot wait for the regular

Pacifica Gallery Showings

A group show is in progress at Periwinkle Art Gallery, Pedro Point, Pacifica, through Oct. 9. Six Pacifica residents are included in the exhibit.

Roberta Croco attended the Laguna Salada School District and recently was graduated from San Francisco State University. She has used colored pencils combined with paint in a series of sea related works.

Jackie Di Cello is a member of the Pacifica Art Guild and is exhibiting a group of animal paintings in oil.

Mary Harris, a teacher in the Laguna Salada District, has made structures designed to be arranged and re-arranged by viewers.

Tom Jackson, well known cartoonist, has created a series of animal sculptures and wall hangings in clay.

Dolores Houston Joyner, a graduate in Art from UCLA, uses oils to create paintings of children at play.

Doris Karchevski was graduated from Wayne University, Michigan. She uses the medium of collage with acrylic to express a budlike image called "Gemma" in a group of abstract paintings.

Pescadero painter Albert Krebs has recorded coastal landscapes and marines in oils.

SCHOOL IMAGE

Rotarian Steve Pollak presented Tom Mohn, principal of Thornton High School, as a speaker at the Rotary Club of Daly City. Mohn spoke of the image of this school in Daly City and what it can do for the community. Marina Project Bucks

"It's not every day that an entrepreneur without any bucks gets a $7 million loan," Brisbane's City Manager Brad Kerwin said.

Kerwin was pleased with the news that the city's Sierra Point Marina project has been granted for a loan from the State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development (DNOD).

The marina project will be recommended for a $200,000 beginning loan in the state's 1978-79 budget. With the funds, Brisbane can begin its engineering plans for the 600-berth marina.

The marina development, to be located on 20 acres along the end of the square-shaped former landfill area across the Bayshore Freeway from Brisbane proper, also will include related marina facilities.

Included in the plans are three restaurants and a coffee shop clustered at the shoreline area, a bait and tackle shop, ship chandlery, yacht sales area, boat repair yard and fishing pier.

There also will be public open space and picnic areas with walkways and vista points.

Estimated cost of the development is $6,940,000, Kerwin said.

Violence

who had been attacked suggested that action be taken in the primary grades where, she contended, violence first begins.

Culley refuted charges that the police department has been remiss in patrolling school grounds.

Culley insisted he has assigned personnel to cover schools, parks and public buildings.

"Schools are a police problem and I would want to be informed of any officer who says that they are not," Culley added.

Culley said persons patrolling schools, parks and public buildings are from a civilian patrol. Three days a week they work in teams and the other four days separately.

During a eight-hour period, from 4 p.m. through midnight, patrols check buildings and parks at least two or three times.

"They are not police officers. They cannot make arrests, but are equipped with radio units so they can summon officers to the scene," he said.

During the daylight hours it is hard to sort out who is breaking the law since school grounds also are used for recreation, Culley explained.

He added that all calls which come through their department's dispatcher are recorded and responded to.

In other business, the board:

- Approved a request by Nettie Herbert, coordinator of the district's bilingual program, to write a 1978-79 application for Title VII — bilingual programming — funding. However, the board decided against applying for a 1977-78 Bay Area Bilingual Education grant, reasoning that it was a language maintenance program that was to have been only experimental. The program is costing the district some $200,000. The grant would have supplied only $38,000 in federal funding.

In other action, trustees also:

- Heard a report on the district Elementary School Aid Act program, indicating the program is doing well. The report was given by Dr. Roger Reimer from the University of Pacific School of Education.

- Renewed an agreement for legal services of Rogers, Vizzard & Tallett, to recover damages incurred by frequent noise at the Colma schools. The agreement calls for payment not to exceed $5,000. The hourly rate is $60 per hour.

- Heard a first reading of a student records policy that would protect a student's records from random access, while making the record accessible to the parents or guardians under specified rules.

Ralph Damon pauses to extol the merits of backyard composting.

Compost

down is tomato seeds, he said. Manmade fibers such as nylon can't be composted, either.

Damon takes all types of debris and adds it to the pile, turning the matter at least every three days and keeping it watered "to the point where it is moist but not oozing."

This method of composting will break down most materials within two to three weeks.

Occasionally, Damon will throw in the remains of a dead cat he finds in the street "and within two weeks, you can't find a bone."

Damon also makes periodic trips to San Francisco to get free sludge when it is given away by the San Francisco garbage transfer station.

"Most garbage is garden's gold," he commented.

Damon, who is a retired finance and accounting employee of the Crown-Zellerbach Corporation in San Francisco, said the bounty of his garden can almost entirely feed him and his wife Margaret.

The couple does considerable canning and freezing, he said.

Among their other activities is continuing 30 years of work with the Girl Scouts. The Damons are leaders of a troop with a Mariner's interest. They have taught hundreds of girls the fine points of sailing.

Damon was also active in the formation of the Broadmoor Police Protection District and the neighborhood Garden Village Property Owners Association.

He recalls fondly the days when he served as a Broadmoor reserve. At that time, the police department kept seven horses and Damon would add the manure to his compost piles.

Damon said people often stop while he is composting and ask questions.

"They will say, 'I've seen you for ten years and today I just had to stop,'" Damon smiled.

"They stop for a minute and stay for an hour."

Damon's favorite room in the couple's cozy house is a large sunroom at the rear. It looks out on the rear garden area.

On a sunny day in September, the garden indeed is a pleasant place. A soft breeze is tinkling the wind chimes. Damon's cat chases toads and his parrot sits in a low bush and occasionally says something.

The man who proudly refers to himself as the compost king of Colma surveys his domain, gives the compost pile a few more pats with the pitchfork and retires to the sunroom.

Traffic Victim Still Critical

George D. Davidson, 61, 68 Poinsettia Ave., San Mateo, remained in critical condition today at Chope Hospital where he is being treated for head injuries suffered Saturday night when he and his wife were struck by an auto.

Davidson's wife, Mary Jean, 56, died two hours after the mishap occurred. The couple was walking across the street, but not in a crosswalk, when they were struck by a car driven by James A. Belle, 19, of Foster City, according to San Mateo police.

Police said the couple wore dark clothing. Belle was not cited.

last Friday. "And we're still getting more signatures in, he said. EERB is required to set an election if 30 per cent of those persons involved request one.

"We feel we've gone along much too long without any results," Wright said Tuesday. "The board and JCTA are polarized to the point that negotiations simply are not happening."

Most teachers in the district, Wright asserts, "are upset by this. We want people at the negotiating table, and we believe new leadership will get us a contract."

Wright added: "Everybody feels a need for some new blood. We're pretty confident that a new team can sit down with a new style and negotiate a pretty good contract."

Of the 371 teachers in the district, about 40 now are members of AFT.

Trial Likely

San Mateo County's first child pornography case appears destined for trial after all.

Duque Williams, 46, of San Jose, withdrew his guilty plea to a charge of selling obscene material after Municipal Court Judge Wilbur R. Johnson indicated Monday that he would sentence Williams to county jail for 45 days and fine him $315.

Galen Randolph, operator of the controversial Lily Theatre in the unincorporated area of Redwood City, where the films were sold to undercover agents, was given until Oct. 17 to decide whether he wants to go to jail or withdraw his guilty plea to selling obscene material and stand trial.

Judge Johnson told the 37-year-old Randolph that he was facing a minimum of four months in county jail and a $1,000 fine.

Williams will have his trial date set on Oct. 17. He and Randolph had entered conditional guilty pleas last month.

The condition was that they could withdraw their pleas if the judge saw fit to sentence them to jail.

At the time, Judge Johnson indicated a tentative no-jail commitment.

Fewer Officials Attend Conclave

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Seventy-one officials from cities in San Mateo County registered for this year's League of California Cities convention in San Francisco, compared to 116 who attended last year's convention in San Diego.

However, San Bruno Mayor Gary Mondfrans said he saw a number of other San Mateo County officials, who he said attended meetings without paying the $50 registration fee.

"If you're just going to attend one or two sessions, I think the $50 fee is unreasonable," Mondfrans remarked.

County officials attending the three-day conference last year spent more than $30,000 in taxpayers' money for air fare, registration, meetings and lodging. Criticism of that spending could be one reason this year's "official" attendance is lower.

Mondfrans said another factor might have been the cancellation of U.S. Sen. S. I. Hayakawa's scheduled appearance.

"They all wanted to see him sleep," Mondfrans said.

San Mateo County cities with the most delegates registered were Redwood City (16), Daly City (15) and Menlo Park (13).

San Mateo and South San Francisco each had seven delegates registered. Brisbane had four, Millbrae, three; San Bruno, two; and Burlingame and San Carlos, one each.

No city officials from the cities of Pacifica, Foster City, Colma, Half Moon Bay or Hillsborough were registered, but some were seen attending meetings at the convention.

One Suspect Cleared

A 16-year-old juvenile has been cleared of murder charges in the June 22 fatal stabbing of Robert Hillsborough, a San Francisco gardener and homosexual.

The youth, whose name was not released because he is under age, was convicted of assault by a San Francisco juvenile court. He is awaiting sentencing in San Mateo County, where he lives.

The trial of two adult defendants, John Cardova, 19, of Daly City and Richard J. Spooner, 20, of San Bruno, is scheduled to begin in Superior Court, San Francisco, on Oct. 17.

The fourth suspect in the case, Michael Chavez, 20, also of Daly City, was granted immunity by the district attorney's office in San Francisco.

The case became a cause celebre in San Francisco's homosexual community because witnesses said the killers shouted sexual taunts at Hillsborough before the fatal stabbing.

Pacifica to Talk Scavenger Rate

By NANCY STANCILL
Pacifica's City Council Monday night set a special study session to discuss how to handle requests for rate increases from the Coastside Scavenger Co., but declined to discuss several proposals by residents for a performance audit of the garbage company.

Mayor Sidney Lorvan had asked that the council develop procedures to deal with rate increase proposals by the scavenger company, although Coastside head Mario Torrigino said he is not planning to ask for an increase in the near future.

Torrigno said he doesn't know if completion of the Mussel Rock transfer station, set for Feb. 15, 1978, will require a rate increase.

The new transfer station will be a joint venture of the City of Daly City and the Daly City Scavenger Co., but the Pacifica garbage handling firm also will use the new facility. "I don't know what it will cost me to use it," said Torrigino, adding that Daly City has not developed definite figures either.

Lorvan acknowledged that a rate increase has not been requested, but added, "Our rate increase procedure is extremely informal and doesn't provide for hearings or an independent audit."

After some discussion, the council referred the procedural matter to a committee composed of Councilmen Mark Savage and Nick Gust.

Savage and Gust agreed to meet with city staff and report on the matter Nov. 2.

Chris Welles, a resident and member of ALERT, a citizens group, urged the council to consider a performance audit of the scavenger company.

He said such an audit would be more than a study of the accounts, but would evaluate the company's efficiency.

Welles requested that the council hear a report by Charles Daniels, who had prepared a lengthy statement for publication in the Fairmont neighborhood's newsletter.

Council members said, however, that it was not an appropriate time to discuss the audit question. Lorvan cut off lengthy comment by Ruth Paige of Keep Pacifica Scenic, another advocate of a performance audit.

In other business, the council selected Envirotech Corp. as a consultant to analyze the Pacifica sewage treatment plant's current operations and maintenance costs.

The consultant also will project future costs when the secondary treatment system goes into operation.

Envirotech Corp. will be paid $5,250 for its work, and was chosen over a $7,230 proposal by Resources Engineering and Management Co. of Daly City.

The choice of Envirotech prompted a sharp exchange between Councilmen Savage and Gust. Savage referred to Gust's friendship with Robert Bernicchi, of the Daly City firm.

Gust retorted that he is friends "with a lot of people" and that fact had nothing to do with the existence of the proposal.

The fact that Stephen Street, city director of community development and services, did not offer the council a recommendation on the matter also was a matter for pointed discussion.

Councilman Stanley Farber said he was "really concerned that you (Street) as a department head can't commit yourself on a recommendation. We value your advice."

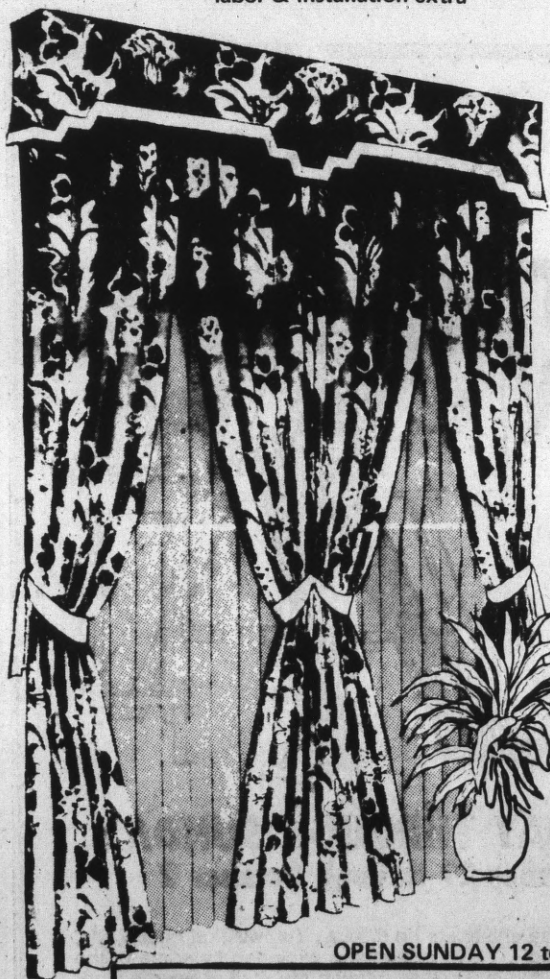

When pressed, Street said he would recommend Envirotech for its lower cost, but that either firm could do "substantially the same thing for council."

Anti-Crime Program Brings It to Community

By JANET PARKER
An anti-crime program involving the cooperation of police officers, the business sector and every neighborhood in the city was launched last week in South San Francisco.

Concern about a spiraling crime rate — which went up 22 per cent last year — has led police Chief James Datzman and a special unit of officers to initiate a war on crime.

The aim of the program is to decrease the crime rate, increase apprehension of residential criminals and get residents to take simple precautions against crime in their neighborhoods.

"We believe it's up to the community to help one another," said Officer John Moran, one of two officers spearheading the project.

"Crime is not a police problem," added Officer Art Toscano. "It's a problem for everybody."

There may be as few as 10 officers on the streets of South San Francisco at one time covering 10 square miles, he said. Residents must learn to recognize suspicious activity and report it to the police immediately, he said.

The South San Francisco Police Department became alarmed last year when it compiled its crime statistics for 1976 and saw figures like this: burglary, up 17 per cent to 822 incidents; grand theft up 17 per cent to 441 incidents; auto theft up 21 per cent to 253 cases; and robberies up 28 per cent to 54 reports.

More than $455,000 in property was lost last year alone in South San Francisco as a result of burglaries, Toscano said.

The city's Crime Prevention Committee — composed mostly of citizens — was equally alarmed. In February, the department and its citizen group began working toward a crime fighting program, getting familiar with programs provided in other cities.

"I told the officers it's their job to pull it together," Datzman said, since general fund money from the city was not available.

And "pull it together" is exactly what they did. South San Francisco officers believe their program is unique perhaps throughout the entire state in that businesses and civic groups were concerned enough to donate more than $2,500 to date to set the program on its feet.

A major thrust of their door-to-door effort is to arouse interest in periodic — perhaps monthly — block meetings where crime information could be disseminated.

For example, Datzman said, if officers are aware that someone in an orange pickup truck is conducting burglaries in a specific neighborhood, residents of that area can be alerted and told to report any activity concerning such a truck.

Block captains will be assigned to organize meetings as they are needed.

"We hope we will be able to disseminate a lot of information and receive a lot more," Moran said.

Bumper stickers reading "Good Neighbors Prevent Burglaries" have been printed for citywide distribution. In addition, 11-by-17-inch signs for business windows stating "Protect your neighbor — call the police when you see a suspicious person or vehicle" are available.

The officers are also hoping to step up business and home inspections and use of Operation I.D. — a system of engraving valuables with an easily identifiable drivers license number.

Toscano said burglary is one of the most easily preventable crimes. In fact, 29 per cent of the city's burglaries last year were through windows and doors left open by homeowners.

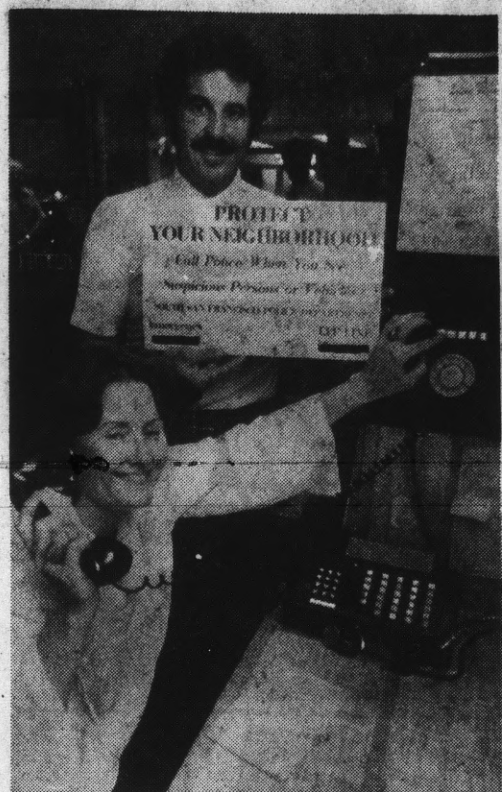

On the other hand, Datzman said, too many residents are turning to an opposite extreme.

"Nothing turns me off more than to see a string of houses with bars and iron grating — people who feel they have to lock themselves into their houses to be secure," Datzman related.

People must get accustomed to recognizing and reporting the suspicious — the unfamiliar person who is seen leaving a neighbor's house, or a car parked where it shouldn't be.

"Nobody knows your neighborhood better than yourself," Datzman said. "If you feel it's unusual, we want you to call the police."

THEFT-IN-PROGRESS HOTLINE

Dispatcher Dot Lightfoot, Officer Fred Carelli

He Wars on Bureaucratic Gobbledygook in County

Visitors to Joel Panzer's cubicle at the County Government Center are greeted by an attention-demanding acronym printed in bold black ink and tacked to a corkboard wall — K.I.S.S.

An invitation to boss and embrace the county's communication specialist, the display is not. Instead it's a none too subtle reminder to jargon-plagued writers of government memos and reports to Keep It Simple Stupid.

Panzer, a fast talking wordsmith whose enthusiasm is as magnanimous as his expansive barrel chest, wants to turn more people on to government by making it more understandable.

His aim is to eliminate the jargon, gobbledygook and ivory tower phrases that so routinely appear in government documents. He wants to destroy the image of government as a mindless bureaucratic entity.

"We hear a lot about public apathy toward its government and government leaders wondering why nobody gets involved," says Panzer, the only communications specialist employed in a California county. "Well I know why. It's very hard for people to participate in something they don't understand."

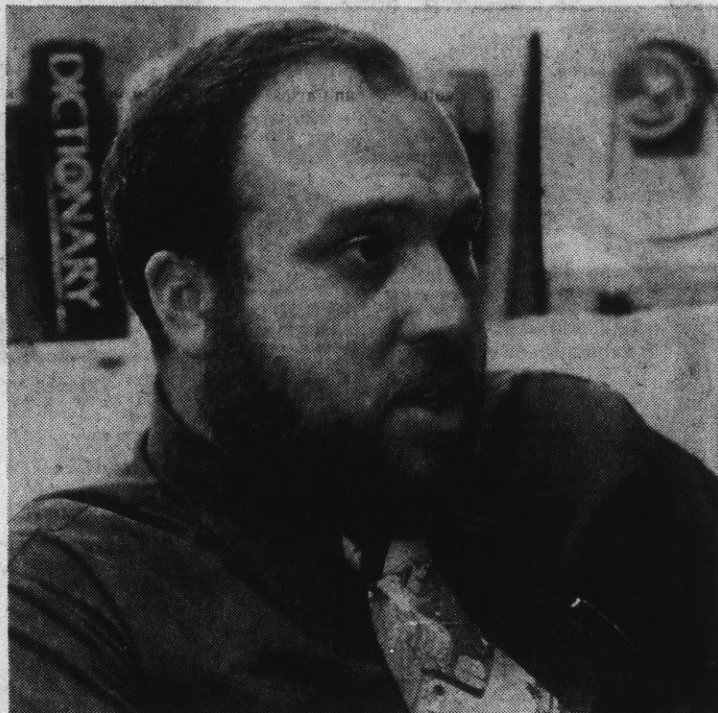

"If people who grasp the workings of government don't choose to get involved then that's none of our business. But if people don't participate because they don't understand, then that is our business."

"We have a responsibility to communicate at a level at which the average person can comprehend. If we don't, then I think it borders on the criminal. People just don't know what's going on."

Panzer uses a recent example of memo writing by a county employee to illustrate his point.

The memo concerns a study on the recreation needs of the county. "The objective of this work will be to derive estimates of recreation participation rates with respect to variables and population characteristics by use of specially adapted computer programs."

The memo was written to the Board of

IN FAVOR OF CLEAR WRITING

Joel Panzer discusses his unique job with a dictionary nearby.

Supervisors and the public. But before it was distributed it was delivered to the communications specialist to be "Panzerized."

Working with the writer, Panzer revised the memo:

"We will obtain estimates on how often people like to do various kinds of recreation in relation to the type of people they are. We will consider age, income, sex, education and family size. We will use specially adapted computer programs."

Panzer believes that professionals in government, like those in the private sector, never have learned to write to the general public, relying instead on the writing style they were taught at the university level.

"We've got professionals who can't write, trying to communicate with people who can barely read," says Panzer.

So, many professionals, planners, engineers and administrators breezed through universities, Panzer maintains, because they wrote what their teachers wanted to read.

"The teachers used the gobbledygook and big words of a course of study and the students fed it right back to them. The writer patted the teacher on the back and stroked his ego and as a consequence the student got an A (grade)," claims Panzer.

"My job is to try to help these professionals unlearn what they learned."

Since November 1975, Panzer, a San Francisco State University cum laude graduate, has been conducting seminars for county employees interested in improving their writing skills.

"I try to make the employees aware of who their readers are, stressing that memos and reports are not read solely by their colleagues but often by the general public," explains Panzer.

"Studies have shown that the average reader has a hard time following the instructions on a Jello package," he adds. "We as government employees do not have the right to say that people should use a dictionary whenever they read a government report."

Panzer has been developing a report format that satisfies his concerns and those of the technical writers.

In the first 10 pages of every major county report is an easily understandable summary of the study, including recommendations for action.

The remainder of the document describes in detail, in sometimes complex language, technical aspects of the study.

"With this format the public can get the gist of the report in the first few pages and if it so desires can read beyond those pages for specifics," explains Panzer. "These specifics are technical in nature, but often must be included in reports for legal reasons."

Panzer also is attempting to make government more interesting by slide show presentations at public meetings and preparation of pamphlets on county programs.

"It's human nature that people don't really care about things unless it directly affects them," says Panzer. "Well, government affects everyone and my job is to try to get their attention in any way I can."

Recently, in an effort to entice the public to attend hearings on a proposed coastal plan scheduled by the Planning Department, Panzer designed a sex-oriented flyer that asked "Do you want more nude beaches?"

The circular featured a photo of the county's coastal beach area with groups of picnickers — in bathing suits.

"We'll do almost anything to encourage people to become more involved in their government," says Panzer.

Beware Black Widow

Although the black widow spider may not be the most common insect in California, it's one to be wary of. Its loose irregular webs can be found in dark corners of homes, garages, basements, under eaves and under piles of wood or rubbish, says University of California entomologist, John W. Swift.

The bite from this spider is severe and can be fatal, he said.

The female of the species is the one to beware of, he says. She has a rounded, glossy black body and is sometimes called the shoe-button spider. Usually there is an orange or red marking resembling an hourglass on its underside.

However, says the cooperative extension insect specialist, the shape of the mark is not always the same and some spiders may have more than one mark. When its legs are extended, the female is about two inches in length.

The adult male spider is about half as large as the adult female and has stripes of white and pale brown along the sides of the abdomen. While the male produces venom, Swift says, its bite is not dangerous to man.

The bite from the female produces a sharp, needle-like pain. Fifteen minutes to several hours later, local muscular cramps begin. The venom acts on the nerve endings causing motor paralysis.

The first muscles most frequently affected, says Swift, are those of the thigh, shoulder and back. After a varying length of time, the pain becomes more severe spreading to the abdomen. Weakness and tremor usually develop.

The symptoms of black widow spider bite increase in severity for several hours or a day and then slowly become less severe, gradually passing off in the course of two or three days, except in fatal cases.

Persons suffering a reaction from a suspected spider bite should consult a physician and, if possible, take the spider with them for identification.

Swift advises treating garages, basements and attics with a residual spray of lindane to control black widow spiders. Wet the walls and any web with spray along beams, in cracks and corners, under shelves and any protected spots that might be frequented by spiders. Residual spray solutions have oil in them and are flammable, he cautions.

The spray will kill spiders contacted and may continue up to several months to kill spiders visiting the treated surfaces.

A spot treatment of five per cent malathion spray also may be used. If vegetation is to be treated, sprays should be prepared as suspensions from wettable powders according to instructions on labels, he says.

Jobs Survey Topic

Approximately 19,500 manufacturing firms throughout California soon will be asked to participate in the first phase of a survey designed to produce detailed information on the type of occupations found within each major industry in the state.

The Occupational Employment Statistics (OES) survey is intended to produce more accurate and usable occupational information. With the resulting data, better projections of future manpower needs can be made.

Martin Glick, director of the state's Employment Development Department, said this survey can directly benefit students and others in making realistic career choices and help them prepare for so-called growth occupations where there is expected to be a need for qualified people rather than for jobs that are already oversupplied with people, as often now happens.

The information also is expected to be used by:

- Manpower and educational planners, in designing programs and planning curricula.
- High school and college counselors, in guiding students.

- Employers in comparing their staffing patterns with industry-wide occupational patterns. Also, employers will be able to locate geographical areas with concentrations of specific occupational skills.

In succeeding years, the OES survey will cover non-manufacturing firms and trade, and in 1980 it will begin the cycle again with another sample of manufacturers. It is believed that by surveying each industry every three years, emerging occupations as well as those in which the number of workers is stable or decreasing can be identified.

The OES survey is being conducted by the state Employment Development Department, in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor.

Housing Speculation Decreasing

"Single-family housing speculation is on the wane in California's two largest metropolitan areas," according to Anthony M. Frank, chairman and chief executive officer of United Financial Corporation of California, the parent company of Citizens Savings and Loan Association.

In remarks made in New York City to investment officers and security analysts from major eastern financial institutions, Frank described how his firm was tracking the level of real estate speculation in the San Francisco, Los Angeles/Orange County areas.

He said, "Although we felt speculation had played a major role in pushing up the prices of single family residences in California during the past two years and had recently leveled off, we wanted to get a better handle on the situation and see if there were any measurable indicators of speculative activity."

"We assumed that when real estate speculation increased, 'speculators' would advertise to try to rent their 'investments,' waiting for prices to increase. Results of a study conducted by Citizens Savings' Research Department show that home rental advertising in Los Angeles/Orange County and San Francisco suburban area newspapers increased dramatically beginning in the spring and summer of 1976, leveling off and declining during this past summer."

Frank said that his company will continue to monitor this apparent new indicator of real estate speculation level and report any significant findings.

Consolidation Study Asked

The Local Agency Formation Commission will not be the lead agency in any study of consolidating San Mateo County's 16 fire departments under a single countywide district, commissioners decided.

By unanimous vote, the commission agreed to urge one of three other county organizations — the Council of Mayors, the Congress of Elected Officials or the Regional Planning Committee — to undertake the study. LAFCO agreed to provide all resource material.

At one point Commissioner William Royer, also a county supervisor, said fire department consolidation "merits exploration."

But Royer argued, and his colleagues concurred, that a consolidation study should be done by representatives of the cities and special districts which would be directly affected.

"I can't see a study being done," said Royer, unless they (cities) are at all interested in implementing recommendations that come out of the study. The cities should be directly involved."

Recently county Supervisor James Fitzgerald and the Fire Fighters Union Local 2400 urged the commission in separate letters to begin a consolidation study.

Fitzgerald said the Congress of Elected Officials, of which he is the chairman, has formed a consolidation task force.

The union letter, signed by Executive Vice President Leo Middendorf, stated, "We believe that such a study would show that a consolidated fire department would offer the citizens better fire protection than now exists for the same or reduced costs."

Middendorf estimated that consolidation would save county taxpayers millions of dollars annually. He claimed that all county fire departments are "top heavy" in command personnel and that consolidation would eliminate department administrators at a cost savings of $3 million a year.

Redwood City Fire Chief

NOW YOU KNOW

The gorilla is not a ferocious man-eater but a moody, stupid and lazy vegetarian.

John Keller has warned that the proposal is a scheme on the part of the union to gain total control of fire service. Consolidation, he has stated, would allow the union to call a countywide strike.

The union local now represents 12 of the 16 fire departments.

There was a hint last week that LAFCO might suggest another agency to conduct the requested study.

Michael Johnson, senior administrative analyst for the commission, said the study might constitute a conflict of interest for the commission, which could in the future be asked to act on small department consolidations if the countywide plan fails to materialize.

Middendorf told LAFCO that the union wants an agency outside the jurisdiction of municipalities to conduct the study so that it would be done in an "objective, unbiased manner."

"I don't think that councilmen and city managers should be conducting the study and I don't think they should decide whether consolidation should take place. The voters should decide," said Middendorf. Commissioner A. C. "Bud" Harrison reminded Middendorf that only city councils can determine if a fire department consolidation ballot measure should be presented to the voters. LAFCO instructed commission Executive Officer B. Sherman Coffman to send a letter to Fitzgerald advising that he seek another lead agency for the study.

processes of government to reach their realizations; they disrupt meetings, dominate the press and otherwise become disorderly and even violent. The result is an erosion in the people's trust in government.

MADISON WRITES that such incidents at the Watergate case prove that orderly, legal government in our country is "not stolen, but squandered away . . . like a wasted fortune."

Democracy is created by disorder; by confusion by inordinate, impatient people. Pseudo-vigilantes, Madison calls them. "They are the people who, like Carry Nation, feel that they have the right to decide what the members of a given community or region may read, see, or hear."

RELAXING EXERCISES

Crime Fighters Gather

"The time is right to curb organized crime in California," San Mateo County Sheriff John R. McDonald said last week at the opening session of State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger's Organized Crime Control Commission.

The nine-member board opened a two-day hearing at the Airport Marina Hotel in Burlingame. McDonald is one of the nine members. "In the past," he said, "California has been relatively free of organized crime as we know it in the East. We don't want it to start here."

McDonald said California is a "ripe and fertile area for organized crime."

He said the commission will try to determine whether the state is indeed a new frontier of organized criminals.

"We see no real organization here at this time, but has it already started? Is it getting ready to start? That's the charge of this commission."

The session began the second of six scheduled meetings of the recently named board.

Law enforcement officials at state, federal, and local levels are expected to testify before the body during the two days.

Although organized crime is the prime topic, said McDonald, the commission will also delve into prison-related crimes and militant-type offenses.

After the series of six meetings, McDonald said, the commission may decide to subpoena witnesses who may be reluctant to volunteer their testimony. The commission can ask the Attorney General's Office to subpoena such persons, he said.

The sheriff said the commission hopes to have its initial report on organized crime in California ready by the end of this year or in early 1978.

Trustees to Study Athletic Field Pact

Daly City school officials Thursday night refused to sign a contract with the city's Sky Lions Club for use of a 22-acre site until details of the pact can be ironed out.

The point is somewhat moot, however, since the Sky Lions last Saturday, with the help of volunteers from the Army Corps of Engineers, began grading the site as the first step toward converting it into use as an athletic field complex, with soccer, baseball and football fields.

Jefferson Elementary School District trustees postponed signing of the contract until their Oct. 11 meeting. The district already has agreed in principle with the Sky Lions over use of the land under the Civic Center Act. The Sky Lions should not face any legal difficulties over the early grading work.

Board President Al Schwarzbach told the district staff he wants to make sure that the school district is not liable for any damages incurred on the site as a result of Sky Lions' activity.

Dr. John Trompeter, assistant superintendent is to present specifics on both the district's and the Lions' insurance coverage to trustees Oct. 11.

Trompeter also will look into possible drainage problems at the site, discussing the matter with the Lions and the district's maintenance department. He'll present that report to trustees Oct. 11, too.

The parcel in the St. Francis Heights area of Daly City is known as the Savage site. At one time, prior to JESD's declining enrollment situation, trustees had hoped to build a school there.

Sky Lions, with volunteer efforts from the community, hope to have the athletic fields ready for use next spring.

In other matters Thursday night, the trustees: • Approved Oct. 5 as "Back-to-School Night" for kindergarten through sixth grade schools, and Oct. 19 as "Back-to-School Night" for students in the Mentally Gifted Minors program and for the district's three intermediate schools.

• Approved a request to borrow $1.2 million from the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors to meet payroll needs through December. The borrowing occurs each year, as district money from taxes and other sources has not been received.

• Appointed Jose Nieto as head bilingual-resource teacher and Eva Gal as Local Education Agency coordinator for the Teacher Corps at Colma Intermediate School.

He Rode With Paramedics Phony Medic Suspect Held

A 20-year-old San Jose man was arrested at a Menlo Park restaurant Thursday after he broke down and confessed he had been masquerading as a doctor for two days to enable him to ride around in an ambulance with paramedic teams, Sheriff's Deputy James B. Brown reported.

Booked at the county jail on charges of possessing stolen property and impersonating a physician was Edward Forrest Ingram, who, Brown said, was wearing a physician's white jacket, a stethoscope and a name tag reading, "Dr. Morris O. Dailey, M.D. Intern, Pathology," when he approached paramedics Bert West, 25, and Stephen McCreddin, 25, at Stanford Hospital at 8 a.m., Thursday.

Brown said when he later checked with Dailey, the physician reported his name tag had been stolen.

"I didn't feel important," Ingram assertedly told Brown in explaining his actions. West and McCreddin told Brown that Ingram asked to be taken along on emergency ambulance runs when he first approached them. They reported that Ingram had actually assisted in taking vital signs of patients, and had ridden with another Medevac team Wednesday night. Shortly before noon, McCreddin and West reported, Ingram blurted out, "I've committed a horrible crime" and asked that police be called. They drove him to Love's Menlo House on El Camino Real in Menlo Park and radioed the Sheriff's Office.

Then, Brown said, Ingram admitted he had posed as a physician to allow him to ride around with paramedics. Ingram told Brown he had been a medic in the Army and had been a volunteer in the pathology lab at Stanford Hospital. Dailey reported that Ingram had not worked at the hospital, although he had posed as a volunteer worker. Ingram asked that his psychiatrist at Valley Medical Center in San Jose be notified, according to Brown. The deputy said Ingram had been arrested by deputies recently on charges of possessing stolen property, petty theft and giving a false police report. The gown and stethoscope were Ingram's, Brown said.

George Liberace's Reunion at Nick's

George Liberace and his wife were coastsiders last week. The famed violinist-orchestra leader from the Sacramento area enjoyed a reunion with the crew at NICK'S restaurant-lounge in Pacifica. New decor isn't the only change at THE CASTAWAY, Coyote Point. Live entertainment, a Thursday, Friday and Saturday night attraction in the lounge, features handsome pianist MIKE GUZMAN, a veteran of the local circuit who welcomes "sing-along" type gatherings. Vince's Restaurant Crew Professional VINCE'S is an Italian and seafood restaurant with a lot of class. The display of professionalism by chefs and waitresses, not to overlook the gracious hostesses, friendly bartenders, and efficient bus boys, is an obvious concern of the LICATA family, who own-operate this famed "Fisherman's Wharf on the Peninsula." Your appetite determines the tab at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-by-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, Taylor Street entrance. Extra-choice steaks are cut to your exact order — any size — and the weight of the meat determines the price of the complete dinner. One of the most often heard questions around the VILLA HOTEL these past few weeks has been "Where's Ginny?" Ginny, of course, being Ginny Thompson, the raven-haired cocktail waitress who has served countless customers in the five years she's been at the hotel. Ginny is now a blonde — and even her best friends don't seem to recognize her at first sight. The SAN MATEO-BURLINGAME AUXILIARY TO CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL AT STANFORD is having a Benefit Preview of the all-new RAMADA INN in Millbrae Friday, Sept. 30, from 7 to 11 p.m. $7.50 per person includes entertainment, "Sounds of Broadway," buffet, dancing, and no-host cocktails. Mail checks to Hospital Auxiliary, 90 Rockridge Road, Hillsborough. The Jack Sabine Trio is creating "entertainment waves" at The Mast on Oakland's Jack London Square. The veteran musicians were such a hit opening night that they were booked by restaurant owner Janet Lucasey to appear in the lounge through New Year's Eve. Good food and grog is another plus here, says Manager Charles Lyndell. Many families find THE OMELETTE HOUSE on Peninsula Avenue a fun place to take small children. While orders for special omelettes are being prepared, small fry are given cartoons to color. The "budding young artists" get their art displayed on the wall. When the space is filled with work, judging and prizes follow.

Le Pacini

Larry O'Brien must have mis-read the NBA compensation rule which says that the team which has a player taken from it by another team "must be made whole again."

Can there be any other explanation for the NBA commission having awarded the Warriors a relatively low first round draft choice and a paltry $250,000 as compensation for the Lakers having signed Jamaal Wilkes, one of the pro game's premier forwards?

O'Brien must have read the rule as, "to make a hole in the team."

I thought that O'Brien might be a gutty commissioner, but I can see that I miscalculated.

There is only one way for the Warriors to fight the decision, and that is to raid other NBA teams (not the Lakers, who have nothing to raid but Wilkes and that big center). And the Warriors, with a solid, winning team, a popular black coach and a location loved by most, might be able to raid more effectively than just about any team in the NBA.

THERE is a lot of talk about O.J. Simpson's chances of breaking the career ground gaining total of 12,212 yards, set by Jim Brown. Simpson, entering his ninth pro season, needs 2,586 to equal Brown's mark, which he evidently figures on doing within the next two years, because he plans to retire after that.

Because O.J. has averaged 1,375 yards a season, he seems certain to pass Brown relatively comfortably in two more years. Of course, O.J. won't, and never has had the line in front of him that Brown had, so breaking the record in two more seasons isn't necessarily the clinch it seems to be. On the other hand, there is no rule — except whatever rule O.J. makes himself — that says if he falls short at the end of two more seasons, he can't play for another season.

That is where Simpson has the edge over Brown. It is always easier to break a great record than to establish it, because the man going for the record knows exactly what he has to shoot for. Had Brown known that some day there would be a guy named Simpson challenging his record, he might have gone one more season to extend that record. He was certainly capable, because Brown retired still at his peak, still unmarried by injuries.

But then Brown just might make a comeback and re-break the record. After all, by then he'll be only 43. He's always in top shape, and anybody who has survived the torrid love scenes Brown endured with Raquel Welch in "100 Rifles" is capable of any physical feat.

TRIVIA QUICKIE: Who was the NFL's first president? Why, Jim Thorpe, of course.

IF YOU LIKE to see middle-aged Italians make fools of themselves trying to hit a lobbed softball, go out to Funston playground at 8 p.m. Oct. 4 to watch the sixth annual North Beach Old Timers vs. the San Francisco Old Timers.

The contest is held in conjunction with the Columbus Day celebration.

Among famous old Italians to participate, we are informed by third base coach Heinie Thompson, will be Al Facchini, Joe Oregno, Marino Pieretti, Dan Benedetti, Dino Restelli, Gino Cimoli, Dario Lodigiani, Frank Lucchesi, Lou Landini and Carl Valero.

"Others" will be Dick Hanlon, Joe Sprinz, Lloyd Dickey, Art Dikas, Bud Pellissier and Goose Goslin.

Giants' second string play-by-play man Joe Angel will be the starting pitcher for the San Francisco Old Timers.

Yours truly has also been invited to play, but writing this column is embarrassing enough.

WHEN MIKE BUSKY was brought up in September by the Phillies as a fill-in for shortstop Larry Bowa, it marked the first time in Pacifica history that three kids from the Coastside ever appeared in the major leagues during the same period of time.

The others were Bob McClure, the Brewers' ace lefty reliever, and Keith Hernandez, the Cardinals' crack first baseman who many fans forget attended Terra Nova High as a freshman before his family moved to San Bruno. Incidentally, all three of the above named played ball at Terra Nova.

IT'S TIME now to talk of the Giants of the future, and management seems to be making some sincere efforts to make that contemplation pleasant.

All of the Giants' farm teams did well this year, the top performance being by top farm club Phoenix, which took the PCL pennant and play-offs, the first title for Phoenix since 1958.

Individual honor performances abounded throughout the farm system. Phoenix left fielder Chris Arnold (a former utility man for the big club) set a Phoenix record with 171 hits and led the league in triples (15); southpaw Frank Riccetti (who had a cup of coffee with the Giants last season) used his new screwball to lead the league in strikeouts (135); relief pitcher Tommy Toms (up briefly with the Giants earlier this year) led the PCL in saves (19); and Greg Minton, currently with the Giants, had the league's top winning percentage, a .700 with a 14-6 slate.

California League Giants also fared well individually at Fresno. The league's managers voted John Johnson the best pitching prospect, the pitcher with the best fastball, and the best fielding pitcher; while southpaw hurler Ted Barnicle was named as the hurler with the best curve, Mark Woodrey was voted the best defensive outfielder, and second baseman Joe Strain was named the most improved player.

The Giants also recently signed a top prospect in Charles Davis, a 17-year-old catcher out of Los Angeles who is a right handed slugger with, say the optimists, a style similar to George Foster's; and, perhaps in hoping to recapture some of the lost glory, they signed Francisco Rojas, a 19-year-old nephew of the Alou brothers.

Rojas, like his uncles, is an outfielder. He bats lefty, throws right, and, notes Giants' publicist Stu Smith, nostalgically (and perhaps hopefully), is 5-11, 185 pounds — the exact dimensions of his uncle Felipe when he was signed by the Giants.

IT WAS noted here recently that when Babe Ruth hit his 60 home runs in 1927 that it represented 13.7 per cent of the league's total homers that year, and that he in fact single-handedly hit more homers than any other American League team that season, and more than five of the eight NL teams.

Those statistics were amazing enough, but then I discovered that when Ruth hit his 54 in 1920, it represented 14.6 per cent of the homers hit in the AL that year, and that he out-homered EVERY team in the big leagues except the Phillies, who managed to edge him out with 64 homers.

Rams Over-run San Mateo

Quarterback Tony Limutau ran and passed Westmoor High's football team to a 20-6 nonleague victory Friday over visiting San Mateo.

Limutau got Westmoor moving from its own 48 yard line when he connected with wide receiver Rich Rogers on a 35-yard pass play mid-way through the second period.

Westmoor's junior QB then got dumped for a 13-yard loss, but bounced back with a 30-yard TD scamper to give the Rams a 7-0 lead.

Westmoor took over on its own 46 yard line early in the second half and Limutau kept things rolling with a 29-yard aerial to tight end Robert Pittman. Four plays later fullback Fred Jarrett crashed over from the one to make it 14-0.

The Rams closed out their scoring just before the end of the third quarter as Limutau capped an eight-play, 58-yard drive with a 17-yard TD pass to wide receiver Ken Baptista.

San Mateo picked up its only score with 2:41 remaining when quarterback John Myer threw a 44-yard TD strike to wing-back Jeff Olivero.

Limutau rushed 10 times for 57 yards and completed five of 14 passes for 117 yards. Rogers had three catches for 71 yards and Pittman added four receptions for 63 yards.

Myer completed seven of 13 for 106 yards. Halfback

Mike Henson paced SM's running game with 12 carries for 97 yards.

Westmoor is now 2-0 in non-league play. San Mateo slips to 0-2.

San Mateo.....0 0 0 0-6
Westmoor.....13 7 13 0-20

Scoring: W—Limutau 30 run (Maxion kick); W—Jarrett 1 run (Maxion kick); W—Baptista 17 pass from Limutau (kick failed); SM—Olivero 44 pass from Myer (run failed).

Tigers' Air Attack Beats Knights 14-0

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE

In changing times, Terra Nova High's football team was a rock, a model of constancy under Bob Lotti's tutelage.

You could count on two things — Lotti wouldn't lose sleep over most nonleague games, and Lotti would do his best to outlast the forward pass in Pacifica.

Well, forget it. All things must pass. Including, as of this season, Terra Nova.

One reason Lotti may have the Tigers passing is that big (6-2, 180 pounds) quarterback Mike Diaz is strong — both of leg and arm. He has a good big receiver and a good fast receiver to throw to. And running alone wouldn't make it for the Tigers.

Friday Diaz completed nine of 17 passes for 129 yards as Terra Nova topped nonleague opponent Hillsdale for the first time ever, 14-0, and upped its nonleague record to 2-0. Hillsdale, a preseason Mid-Peninsula League favorite, slipped to 0-2.

"People thought we couldn't pass," said Lotti. "Well, we can. And this year I wanted those preseason wins. The kids knew it. They wanted to leave for Hillsdale at 10 in the morning. I've never won a preseason game till this year. It's nice to know what it's like on top, where other teams have to worry about you."

Terra Nova has size and tough defense, but Hillsdale didn't give anything away in the hitting department. The Knights' main problem, for the second straight week, was an inconsistent offense.

Quarterback Jeff Metter's arm hurt, so he played receiver and defensive back. It's hard to say how much his absence from the helm hurt Hillsdale. It's probable that myriad mistakes hurt Hillsdale more.

The Knights killed themselves with penalties (zealous officials pounded on every infraction, stepping off 21 penalties for 215 yards against the two teams). "Dang," said Hillsdale coach Neal Dahlen, who rarely says anything stronger on the field.

"No execution. We look like the 40ers. Two plays and a holding penalty."

Hillsdale was tough on defense most of the first half. TN didn't run well (Hillsdale linebacker Vinny Roche and company weren't moved by the Tiger heft up front).

But late in the second quarter TN, with one 52-yard pass from Diaz to speedy Randy Peterson and a crucial 15-yard penalty against Hillsdale, marched 88 yards to take a 6-0 halftime lead. John Nava carried over from the three, following 6-3, 230-pound Martin Hobe.

Late in the third quarter Terra Nova drove again, this time running effectively off the tackles, double-teaming Hillsdale linemen, going 60 yards in 13 plays for the final TD. Diaz finally muscled over from the one.

Metter took over at quarterback for Hillsdale and for a time the Knights were revived, going from their own 24 to Terra Nova's 19 in 12 plays. But TN pressured Metter into an incomplete fourth down pass. Terra Nova controlled the rest of the game, and wound up outgaining Hillsdale 234-176.

Lotti thinks Hillsdale still has title-contending talent. "They just made more mistakes, and made them at the right time for us," he said. "This is great — if we can hit with Hillsdale we can hit with anybody."

CSM Wins Its Opener

The quarterback had to beat fear, the fullback had to beat pain, and together they succeeded to help College of San Mateo's football team beat inconsistency.

The result was a 27-21 Golden Gate Conference-opening win over host Diablo Valley College Saturday night — and an early share of the GGC lead.

Quarterback Ralph Costanzo had been criticized by coaches in previous weeks for "bailing out" of the passing pocket too early.

"Let's just say my courage has been in doubt," Costanzo commented. "As a matter of fact, while we were watching films of the Santa Rosa game, coach (Bill) Dickey called me a 'cowardly SOB' in front of everybody. It hurt. But he helped me."

"The coaches were right. I've never in my life had a problem of being afraid... but for some reason this season I was afraid of being hit. I'd pull back and throw the ball up like this —" he demonstrated by gazing at the moon over Pleasant Hill and tossing an imaginary pigskin over it — "and that hurt us."

But Costanzo didn't bail out unnecessarily Saturday night — quite the reverse. Not only did he hit 18 of 32 passes for 259 yards and a touchdown, he also ran effectively on the option, never shrinking from violent contact.

"This time, I just put my head down and hit," he said. "I haven't run like this since high school (which was a few years ago, since he took time out to play minor league baseball). Actually, I love to run."

The run was open for me because last week against Santa Rosa we pitched out off the option. DVC scouts probably saw this and figured they'd cover the pitch and make me run. So I did."

Fullback Jim Walsh, who scored two of the Bulldog TDs, also earned his badge of courage.

But on Saturday night Walsh was in slugging away at the Vikings, getting 53 yards on 13 carries.

Sharks Blank Burl.

Oceana High quarterback Dan Lee threw three touchdowns passes — two to running back Randy Swayne — as the Sharks blanked visiting Burlingame 19-0 at Terra Nova Field Friday night in a nonleague football game.

On Oceana's second offensive play from scrimmage in the first quarter, the 6-2 Lee hit receiver Greg Piccolotti with a 63-yard touchdown pass for a quick Shark lead.

Lee then hit Swayne with an eight-yard scoring pass on Oceana's second possession. Burlingame's defense stiffened in the second and third periods, but Lee connected with Swayne on a 44-yard TD pass to ice it for the Sharks with 7:32 remaining.

Lee completed eight of 12 passes for 184 yards and threw one interception.

Burlingame quarterback Perry Falk left the game with a broken arm early in the third quarter.

Burlingame.....0 0 0 0-19
Oceana.....13 0 0 0-6
Scoring: Piccolotti 63 pass from Lee (kick good); Swayne 8 pass from Lee (kick failed); Swayne 44 pass from Lee (kick failed).

Another Tie For Falcons

SAN FRANCISCO — Mistakes cost both teams dearly as Crestmoor High's football team fought to a scoreless tie with Lowell in a nonleague game.

Crestmoor is now 0-2.

The most crucial mistake came late in the fourth quarter after Crestmoor marched from its own 27 yard line down to Lowell's 40. On third and 15, Crestmoor quarterback Ted Hererra handed to running back Scott Micheletti. Micheletti pulled up and lofted a pass down field to John Futch, who gathered it in about the 18 and roared in for an apparent score.

But the play was called back because of a penalty.

Another mistake came with only seconds left to play. A pass on third and inches gained the Falcons eight yards and a first down to Lowell's 16. But then the Falcons were hit with a delay-of-game penalty, and their final pass fell incomplete.

Lowell didn't have much better luck. On its deepest penetration of the game, down to Crestmoor's 38, Lowell was hit with an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

Signups

Daly City's Recreation Department Fall Playground Program began last week at Colma Intermediate, Robertson, Panorama, George Washington, Skyline, M. Pauline Brown, Majorie H. Tobias, Daniel Webster and F. D. Roosevelt schools; Lincoln, Gellert, Westlake and Westmoor parks.

Recreation Leaders are on duty from 3:30-5 p.m., Monday through Friday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays. Grounds will be closed the first and third Mondays each month for staff meetings and periodically because of bad weather.

Opening activities feature fifth-sixth and seventh-grade grade football and sign-ups for the city-wide punt-pass and kick contest to be held at Westlake Park Oct. 1.

Daily playground activities are designed for children seven years and over and will offer leadership in a variety of active games, trips, playdays and special events throughout the year.

Regent Rally for Naught

HAYWARD — Serramonte High's football team, with first string quarterback Lou Tinsley sidelined early after a hard tackle, battled from a 13-0 halftime deficit to take a 14-13 fourth quarter lead, but finally bowed 16-14 to host Logan Friday night.

Serramonte (1-1), after losing Tinsley early in the second quarter because of a bruised back, was held scoreless until the final quarter.

Back-up signal caller Bob Gradwohl finally got the Regents rolling five minutes into the last period and engineered a 50-yard scoring drive, highlighted by Darryl Jones' consistent running and capped by Carlos Duarte's four-yard scamper.

Following a fumble recovery, Gradwohl tied the score by connecting with wide receiver Chico Lewis for 23 yards and a touchdown. Bob Pinomaki put Serramonte ahead 14-13 with a successful conversion kick with just 1:53 remaining.

But Logan (now 2-1), in a final desperation drive, scored the winning points on a 30-yard field goal by Warno Zerbin.

For the second straight week Jones paced all Serramonte rushers with 77 yards. Gradwohl came off the bench to complete nine of 19 passes for 92 yards.

Serramonte.....0 0 0 0-14
Logan.....13 0 0 2-16
Scoring: L — Rion 30 pass from Bruno (kick failed); L — Calhoun 42 pass interception return (Zerbin kick); S — Duarte 4 run (Pinomaki kick); S — Lewis 23 pass from Gradwohl (Pinomaki kick); L — Zerbin 30 field goal.

Three Seconds Left, A Field Goal Wins It

El Camino High's Roger Ruzek kicked a 44-yard field goal with three seconds remaining to lift the Colts to a 9-6 non league football victory Friday over host Capuchino.

Ruzek's kick capped a miraculous comeback by El Camino. The Colts trailed Capuchino 6-0 with 2:02 left in the contest with the Mustangs in possession on their own 20 yard line.

However, a fumble set Camino up on the 14-yard line with 1:12 left, and three plays later EC quarterback Mark Evans tossed a two-yard TD aerial to Ruzek to make it 6-6. But Ruzek's PAT attempt was blocked by Cap's Tony Taylor.

Ruzek then booted the ball into the end zone on the kick-off and Cap took over on its own 20. Camino's defense held the Mustangs for four plays, setting the stage for Ruzek's dramatic kick.

Ruzek, who acquired the nickname "Automatic" for his placekicking prowess while competing for the Pop Warner San Bruno Rams, split the uprights with his kick and then stood with his hands raised to the sky as his teammates mobbed him.

It was a tremendous ending to an otherwise mundane contest. Up until the final two minutes, the only excitement had been a third quarter touchdown drive by Capuchino. Wide receiver Jay Boragno capped that 11-play, 58-yard effort with a nine-yard TD reception from QB Tom Fell.

Both teams are now 1-1 in non-league play.
El Camino.....0 0 0 0-9
Capuchino.....6 0 0 0-6
Scoring: C — Boragno 9 pass from Fell (run failed); EC — Ruzek 2 pass from Evans (kick blocked); Ruzek 44 FG.

S.I. Drubs S.S.F.

St. Ignatius Prep's powerful football team welcomed South San Francisco High back to the mainland Friday night by crushing the Warriors 31-6 at SSF's Clifford Field.

South City, which won its opener 16-8 last week in Hawaii, was no match for St. Ignatius. SI outgained the Warriors 333 to 134 and scored a touchdown in every quarter.

SI was playing without soph passing whiz Ken Cruz (injured against Lincoln) and standout tailback Steve Burns (flu). But that didn't seem to matter. The Wildcats ran almost at will against a highly-touted SSF defense.

Tailback Charles Williams did most of the damage for SI. He scored three touchdowns and picked up 107 yards rushing on seven carries.

Williams scored on a 71-yard TD run on SI's first series and then had scoring catches of 59 and 13 yards (both on screen passes) from quarterback Dan Kearney. SI fullback Leo Bragagnolo also added 24 carries for 129 yards.

South City's fine tailback Dave Palmer provided the only excitement for SSF. He picked up 92 yards on 21 carries and scored on a two yard run with 1:15 remaining in the first half.

SI is now 2-1 in non-league play; South City drops to 1-1.

St. Ignatius.....7 10 7 7-31
South City.....6 0 0 0-6
Scoring: SI — Williams 71 run (Salvemena kick); Salvemena 28 FG; SSF — Palmer 2 run (pass failed); SI — Williams 59 pass from Kearney (Salvemena kick); SI — Holton 18 interception return (Salvemena kick).

Bus Riders Desire More Direct Service

Mainline bus riders want more frequent direct service between San Francisco and Palo Alto, a SanTrans poll indicated.

Marketing and planning personnel of the San Mateo County Transit District distributed nearly 2,000 questionnaires on Mainline buses recently. Replies are still coming in through the mail, but close to 1,000 already have been tallied.

Route 7F, between Page Mill Road in Palo Alto and downtown San Francisco, currently operates only in commute hours. But 91 per cent of the questionnaires tallied so far call for all-day service in both directions. Most riders prefer half-hour frequencies.

Greatest pressure for direct southbound service came from San Franciscans commuting to work destinations on the Peninsula. Riders on 7S buses (San Francisco to Hillsdale) were nearly unanimous in calling for all-day express service to Peninsula cities.

Seventy-five per cent of those responding proposed that the current 7A bus linking Palo Alto, San Francisco International Airport and BART/Daly City be re-routed directly to downtown San Francisco. Yet four out of five favored a continuation of present SanTrans bus service between the airport and the Daly City BART terminal.

Service linking the San Mateo Drive-California Avenue area in San Mateo and Burlingame with International Airport was favored by 76 per cent of the SanTrans patrons, and a similar percentage asked for buses between Daly City and San Francisco along outer Mission Street. Current weekday service on this route runs only during commute hours. At other times, buses are routed to BART.

Nearly three out of four patrons believe that Mainline service has improved since July 2, when SanTrans supplanted 48 years of continuous Greyhound passenger service on the Peninsula. Ridership has grown by more than 300 per day since the transition, and Mainline buses are now carrying some 10,200 daily passengers. Greyhound transported 7,500 daily in both San Mateo and Santa Clara counties.

"Over and above the tallied responses," said SanTrans General Manager John T. Mauro, "we obtained many written comments from passengers that will prove extremely helpful."

Mauro will propose Mainline service adjustments reflecting poll results and other staff studies to SanTrans directors tonight at 7:30 in the Millbrae City Council chambers.

Help Wanted

Several agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame, Daly City and Redwood City.

Volunteers are needed for the San Mateo, Pacifica and Redwood City clinics. The training consists of six sessions held in the morning and an interview is required prior to the training.

VILLA SANATORIUM — Recreational aides are needed to help with various activities including arts and crafts, games, parties, reading books, playing an instrument, and visiting with patients. The time is flexible.

Older Homeowners Can Postpone Taxes

State Senator John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, has announced that most of California's older homeowners can now postpone payment of property taxes.

Legislation recently enacted allows low and moderate income homeowners over 62 to defer payment of part or all of their residential property taxes, beginning with the payment due on Dec. 10, 1977.

"The measure was passed by state lawmakers to help thousands of older homeowners in danger of losing their homes because they live on fixed incomes and cannot afford the rapidly increasing local property taxes. Although this legislation is totally voluntary, I believe it will help many senior citizens keep their homes," he said.

Claimants must be 62 years of age or older as of Dec. 31, 1976, own and occupy their home at the time of filing, have at least a 20 per cent equity in the property, and have a total household income of $20,000 or less.

"One other important requirement is that the home must have a homeowner's exemption. This excludes $1,750 of the assessed value from taxation, reducing the amount of property taxes to be postponed," Foran said.

To eventually recover the postponed taxes, the state controller will place a lien on the property for the amount postponed. The law also provides for an interest charge of 7 per cent a year to be added to the lien amount.

The postponed taxes and interest will be recovered after the property is sold or the claimant ceases to occupy the residence.

Foran said, "I think if a person has been working and paying for a home for many years, they should not be forced to sell because of high taxes. A home is owned for security and shelter and our senior citizens deserve to be helped."

Bicyclists In Danger

Bicyclists find Millbrae a hazardous place to ride because of glass scattered on El Camino Real, Gerald Maxwell of the county's Bikeways Committee told the City Council.

Maxwell thanked the council for proclaiming October as "Bicycle Safety Month," then asked it to make Millbrae safer for bicycle riders.

According to the California Highway Patrol, there were 9,556 injuries and 79 deaths among bicyclists in the state in 1975.

The CHP predicts there will be 12,760 injuries and 115 deaths in 1985 unless more safety precautions are taken.

There were 258 injuries and no deaths in 1975 among bicyclists in San Mateo County, 90 per cent of which occurred on city streets, Maxwell said. The rest happened on county roads.

Maxwell said it is common knowledge among bicyclists that El Camino Real in Millbrae is a dangerous place to ride, because of the broken glass and litter on the road.

"Millbrae has a bad record on this, worse than other cities," he said.

As a resident of Millbrae, he said he personally experiences the problem.

Asked why bicyclists don't use the Magnolia Avenue bypass, parallel to El Camino Real, Maxwell replied, "Like everyone else, bicyclists — particularly those who commute — prefer to take the shortest distance between two points. On Magnolia, they spend too much time going up and down hills."

Maxwell noted that Millbrae has a good record on making open drain grates in the streets less hazardous and asked the city to continue that policy.

He asked the city to support any developments which would create more bike routes away from major streets. He encouraged the city to increase bicycle education in schools and to alert car drivers to safety rules designed to prevent them from colliding with bicyclists.

Maxwell stressed that the city should develop a policy of strongly enforcing laws pertaining to bicyclists.

Mussel Rock Ruling

It's official now. The Mussel Rock dump in Daly City can remain open until Feb. 15, 1978.

The San Francisco Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board last week confirmed an earlier recommendation of a panel of three of its members to give Daly City an extension on dump operation.

The special three-member panel held a lengthy hearing Sept. 1 and decided that it would not be a serious danger to water quality for the 20-year dumping operation to continue five months longer.

The board in January ordered the dump closed, because of a fear that the coastal dumping site would pollute the ocean, should landsliding occur.

The Feb. 15 closing date is supposed to coincide with the completion of the Mussel Rock Transfer Station, now being planned by Daly City and the Daly City Scavenger Co.

The transfer station will serve Daly City and Pacifica as a facility for compacting garbage and switching it to large transfer trucks for long-distance haul to the county's Ox Mountain dump near Half Moon Bay.

CPR Class in DC

The Daly City Fire Department will offer a Red Cross CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) course Oct. 6, 13 and 20 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the upstairs classroom in Fire Station No. 7, 10 Wembley Drive, Daly City.

A fee of $1 is charged for the CPR student kit containing textbook, printed materials and hygienic supplies.

Advance reservations are required. To register or for more information, call Marie Brizuela at 878-9800.

The Times

For Greenthumbers

By IVA NEWMAN

Although it may be just a week or so after Christmas and the weather cold and wet, most gardeners think spring is just around the corner when the first bulbs begin to bloom. Usually the first bulbs to open their flowers are the Snowdrops (Galanthus) and the Snowflakes (Leucojum).

These two bulbs get their popular name because they often start blooming before the snow is gone in colder areas and they often confuse their owners because the flowers of both are bell-shaped with green-tipped petals. However, the snowdrop has the green tips on the inner petals only, while all the snowflake petals are green-tipped. Also, the snowdrop only bears one flower to a stem while the snowflake always has two or more flowers per stem. Every garden should have at least one small planting of these bulbs as they are truly spirit lifters. Use their under spring flowering shrubs. Set the bulbs about three inches apart and deeply enough for a 4 to 5 inch covering of soil. A new planting needs two seasons to reach full development.

Another bulb for early spring flowers is crocus ancycensis which produces orange yellow flowers. You may need to look for this crocus as the nurseries usually stock the Dutch hybrids. These are fine and do a wonderful job under spring flowering shrubs — they just bloom later. Crocus are easy to grow in any well-drained soil in a sunny location. Set the bulbs about 4 inches apart with 4 inches of soil over their tops.

Daffodils are the most popular spring-flowering bulbs, by far, and the King Alfred daffodil is the most popular of this large family. All daffodils are narcissus regardless of the color, the flower shape or the number of flowers per stem. These bulbs are practically foolproof. Given a well drained soil they make a permanent planting that increases from year to year with little or no effort on the part of the gardener. They do well in full sun or light shade and best of all the gophers, field mice and rats seem to know the bulbs are not for eating and so leave them alone.

Divisions

Most every garden has some King Alfred daffodils but if you are limiting your planting to just this one variety you are missing a lot of fun and beauty. You should at least be acquainted with one or two varieties in each official division. The divisions are based on family strains and certain common characteristics and when exhibiting daffodils in a show the blooms must be placed in their official division.

The divisions are made up as follows: 1—Trumpet, the trumpet must be as long or longer than the perianth segments (petals) as "Unsurpassable"; 2—Large Cup, the trumpet must be more than 1/3 but less than equal to the petals as "Binkle"; 3—Small cup, cup not more than 1/3 the length of the petals as "Edward Buxton"; 4—Double daffodils, more than one row of petals as "Cheerfulness"; 5—Triandrus hybrids, cup not less than 2/3 the length of the petals and usually more than one flower per stem as "Thalia"; 6—Cyclamineus hybrids, two types in this division, first, cup not less than 2/3 the length of the petals, second, a cup less than 2/3 the length of the petals as with "Silver Chimes"; 7—Jonquil hybrids, cup less than 2/3 the length of the petals. These are known for their fragrance. These are hybrids with jonquilla parentage, as "Cherie"; 8—Cluster-flowered Tazetta hybrids formerly known under the name of "Poetaz". Typical of this group is "Geranium"; 9—Poeticus hybrids are varieties of Narcissus poeticus. These are among the latest daffodils to bloom and they are widely used in breeding. The best known in this

Several Camellia Species

There are several species of Camellias not to mention the several hundred different varieties of those species. Two of the most popular of these species are the Japanese Camellia, Camellia japonica, and the Sasanqua, Camellia sasanqua.

The Japanese Camellia is by far the more common of the two. This is the upright evergreen shrub with the smooty glossy leaves and beautiful winter and spring blossoms. There are more than 800 named varieties of this species ranging in color from pure white to the deepest dark red with at least 798 variations in between. Blooms can be double, semi-double or single with or without prominent centers of golden yellow stamens.

The Sasanqua Camellia is unmistakably a Camellia, but it does differ in some major respects. It has the same glossy evergreen leaves of the Japanese Camellia but the flowers aren't as big or as double, and they have a nice fragrance which is a bonus. Sasanqua Camellias can also tolerate more sun than Japanese Camellias. The shrub itself has a smaller growing habit and is often more open and pendulous. If you plant a few of these with regular camellias, the blooming season can be extended as different varieties of Sasanquas flower from September to December, months before Japanese Camellias.

Culture for both types is similar, each likes well drained soil rich in organic matter. Keeping them slightly moist but not wet is best especially during hot spells. Mulching will help retain moisture as well as keep roots cooler and weeds eliminated. Japanese Camellias need at least partial shade with deeper shade necessary in hot areas. Although Sasanquas take more sun, some shade is appreciated on hot days such as we have had this past summer. Fertilize camellia plants every six weeks after bloom until the end of summer. An acid plant food or one labeled for camellias, azaleas and rhododendrons is usually the most suitable choice. One last task is keeping the old flowers removed from the plant and its surrounding areas. This is important as the fallen flowers may harbor petal blight disease which will damage future flowers.

Golden Gate Suicide Told

A woman who leaped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge Friday afternoon has been identified by the San Francisco Coroner's Office as Sandra L. Vanderheyden, 25, of Pacifica.

The California Highway Patrol reported a motorist said he saw another person jump over the railing in midspan earlier in the day, but a Coast Guard search team failed to locate a body.

The body of Ms. Vanderheyden was found in the most of the south bridge tower. Keys to a car parked at Vista Point were found in her pocket.

She was the 610th known suicide from the bridge.

division are "Mega", "Actaea" and "Dactyl". Division 10 is miscellaneous daffodils which includes the species and various odd types such as the "Butterfly" daffodil which has a split corona.

Plant Deeply

We have found that we get much better results with our daffodil plantings if we set the bulbs a good eight inches deep. The few, quite hot days we usually experience in mid-winter push the bulbs into growth that is slowed when normal winter weather returns. This causes the stems to be shorter and the blooms to be smaller. We have even planted them as much as 10 inches deep, when we wanted to use the space for shallow-rooted annuals after the foliage had dried, and had both fine flowers and stems.

We usually plant our daffodils in clumps of six to a dozen bulbs. We started doing this years ago when we were getting acquainted with the different varieties. The clumps were placed under shrubs and trees or any place we could dig a hole big enough and deeply enough. When the bulbs were expensive we would use only 3 to 5 in a hole then, when they bloomed we would decide whether we had to have more or could get along with the one group.

It is most important to check the drainage where any kind of bulb is to be planted. The easiest way is to dig the hole and fill it with water until sides and bottom are saturated. Then, keep track of the time it takes the water to drain out of the hole. If it drains away in an hour or two the bulbs will be safe. Bulbs rot if water stands around them for any length of time and more bulbs are lost from poor drainage than from any other cause.

Violas, Pansies Colorful

Pansies are often called the "Princess of Cool Weather Flowers." Pansy plants are small but durable. Pansies begin blooming when no larger than your fist and gradually increase in size to about 10 inches in height by mid-summer. The blossoms are quite large in cool weather, up to 3 inches in diameter. Flower size decreases markedly in warm weather.

You can transplant pansies to the garden as soon as the soil cools in the fall for winter and spring bloom. Space the plants about 6 inches apart and water them down with a solution of transplantone.

Try growing pansies from seed. Buy seeds of the newer hybrids and plant them in the garden now. The small plants will live over the winter and bloom early next spring. When pansy plants begin to decline in vigor and flower size due to hot weather, replace them with summer flowers.

Violas are the little sisters of pansies. The plants are slightly smaller and have finer leaves and somewhat smaller flowers.

Plant breeders have selected viola varieties for clean crisp colors such as apricot, gold, white, purple, blue and yellow. These are prized for edgings which are often planted around beds of pansies or other cool weather flowers such as calendulas and stock.

Winter Bloom Plants

For people living on the Peninsula with its fairly mild winters, there is no reason not to have fresh flowers in the garden even in January. Many annuals and perennials actually prefer the cool temperatures of winter over the quickly warming days of spring.

Calendulas, those bright yellow and orange double daisy-like flowers are especially good winter annuals blooming from late fall through spring if you start them early enough. The plants with their light green leaves can reach two feet in height and do well in massed plantings or containers. More compact dwarf varieties are available too. In addition to bright orange and yellow, the color range now extends into lemon, apricot and cream shades all of which are good, long-lasting cut flowers.

Stocks and snapdragons are standard winter flowers too. Everyone knows the distinctive snapdragon blossom but possibly less familiar are the double azalea flowered Madam Butterfly snapdragons. Their double blossoms have open faces without the regular snapdragon jaws. Stocks display beautiful, fragrant flowers in the cooler winter climates. You can also plant violas and pansies for bright cheery color in shades and combinations of yellows, oranges, apricots, blues, violets and purples.

Don't overlook the cinerarias either. They like cool, moist winters but are not frost tolerant. These plants are 12 to 15 inches tall with broad green leaves and clusters of white, pink, blue or purple daisy-like flowers above the foliage. Potted cinerarias can be displayed indoors when in bloom.

Cyclamens have brilliantly colored exotic flowers and clumps of succulent appearing leaves. The "shooting star" blossoms are lovely in shades of red, pink, purple and white and the flowers open each year from late winter through spring. These popular florists and garden plants are also available with fringed and ruffled edges on the petals.

Cyclamens aren't the only winter blooming perennials. Why not investigate a few of the others and make a planting of annuals and perennials, for color during the coming winter months.

Bank Holds Key to Missing Plane Search

By GEORGE GOLDING

A search of the Santa Barbara Channel for the remains of an airplane which may contain the bodies of four Peninsulans missing for more than a year, will be made if the federal government can get a bank to share the cost.

Fred Beam, Los Angeles investigator for the National Transportation and Safety Board, said he has been instructed to share the cost of salvaging the broken plane.

The costs will be considerable, he estimated.

A shrimp fisherman dragging his nets through the channel July 20, hauled up a piece of airplane wreckage from 800 feet of water, 10 miles due south of Santa Barbara.

Capt. Frank Donahue of Carpinteria pin-pointed the location as 119 degrees 42 minutes west longitude, 34 degrees 15 minutes north latitude.

Donahue said the wreckage was apparently the cabin roof of an airplane, painted white with a gold stripe around the edge.

He said there were jagged bits of broken green plexiglas attached to the aluminum wreckage. The interior padding was a light tan. Aviation experts identified the torn metal as part of a Cessna model 310 or 320.

A little over a year earlier, on July 1, 1976, a twin-engine Cessna model 320 was sold to Charlene J. Davis, who lived at the Woodlake Apartments in San Mateo.

Employees of Bay Aviation, Oakland, where Ms. Davis bought the plane, recall it as being white and green with gold trim.

A color photo shows the plane with white painted cabin roof edged with a narrow gold stripe just above the tinted green cabin windows.

It was this plane, registered as N-5205X, in which three local young men took off early in July last year.

LAST PHOTO OF MISSING PLANE

This Cessna model 320, built in 1962, is the aircraft in which Charlene Davis, Jim Lawrence, Dennis Leung, and Chris Taylor left the Peninsula in July of 1976. They have not been seen since departing Santa Barbara, but wreckage offshore is from a plane of this type.

They left San Carlos airport about July 10, flew to Palomar near San Diego, and stayed overnight in separate locations. They flew back northward, reportedly stopping at Santa Monica, and then Santa Barbara. Again the group separated. Pilot Charlene Davis reportedly flew back to the Los Angeles area, where she had family members.

Chris Taylor, Dennis Leung, and Jim Lawrence, all 24, graduates of Mills High school and acquaintances at University of California at Santa Barbara, visited various friends.

The next day, friends returned Taylor, Leung, and Lawrence to Santa Barbara airport at Goleta.

At 4 p.m. the same day, pilot Davis radioed Santa Barbara control tower for landing instructions.

According to NTSB investigator Fred Beam, she then mistakenly landed at Ventura airport, 32 miles south.

Within minutes, Ms. Davis telephoned to the control tower at nearby Oxnard, apparently panicked that she had landed at the wrong airport.

After receiving directions to Santa Barbara, she apparently took off and continued north to the Santa Barbara airstrip. She had learned to fly during World War II and it had been a long time since she had done very much piloting. She may have been tired from three days of flying and other activities of the weekend.

Visibility was reported at four miles in haze, with scattered clouds at 2,000 feet.

There was no wind. Offshore, moisture was building up into a fog that would move toward the coast at evening.

By 5 p.m. on July 13, she had landed at Santa Barbara airport and had taken on 92 gallons of fuel.

Taylor, Leung, and Lawrence, were reportedly making phone calls until shortly before they took off.

Santa Barbara tower does not keep its message recordings for more than two weeks, so there is no way of knowing whether the plane was cleared to fly north or south. Some relatives assume they flew south for an unscheduled entry into Mexico.

The extensive radar systems at the Navy's Pt. Mugu Pacific Missile Test Range to the south, and at the Air Force's Vandenberg satellite launching station to the north, were not active at that time of day.

There is no radar track, control tower recording, or any other record of the plane since it gassed up at Santa Barbara. The three young men and pilot Charlene Davis have neither been seen nor heard from, since.

Six weeks later, Oakland aviation insurance specialist George Fawcett, who had taken a $100 binder on insurance for the plane, sent notices that the premiums were unpaid and the policy would be cancelled.

Crocker National Bank of Walnut Creek, which had loaned Charlene Davis $21,850 as partial payment for the aircraft, paid up the premium.

It is to Crocker Bank, that Fred Beam of the National Transportation and Safety Board, addresses his request for sharing in the costs of possible recovery.

"The bank would stand to recover from the insurance company if this wreckage can be identified as that aircraft," said Beam.

Officials of the bank indicated they would look into the possibility of sharing in the cost.

They have already considered a action against the insurance company, it was said.

Brunans Put Stamp on Boycott Idea

By JANET PARKER

Some San Bruno merchants and senior citizens are considering boycotting the new city post office to demonstrate the need for a downtown substation.

Those suggesting the possibility of a boycott indicated it may make a significant impression on officials of the Western Regional Division of the U.S. Postal Service, which happens to be in San Bruno.

However, such an action would not occur until after Friday. That's when the Postal Service will open bids for merchants for operation of a contract substation on San Mateo Avenue.

The talk of a boycott occurred at a second meeting of the city's 500-member Citizens Action League concerning the city's postal needs. About 30 senior citizens and merchants attended the meeting.

Both the merchants and the elderly are angry that the city's main post office has been moved to a remote location between Tanforan Shopping Center on the South San Francisco border.

The Postal Service for several months has been trying to find a merchant willing to run a contract substation in the downtown area, but, so far, bids for the operation have been judged unsatisfactory by postal officials.

Postal officials have said San Bruno doesn't generate enough postal revenue to justify a substation run by the Postal Service.

One merchant, Dudley Marshall, told the CAL gathering that one way to start a fire under the Postal Service is to boycott the local facility.

It's just as close for many residents to do their postal business in the Millbrae and South San Francisco post offices, he said.

"A lot of merchants are going to do that," Marshall added. Questioned later, he refused to say which merchants are discussing such a possible action. However, he said it has been discussed on more than just a casual basis.

Marshall urged the CAL members to consider a similar tactic.

Jewish Holidays May Be Negotiable

Jewish holidays became a negotiable item when Jefferson Elementary School District trustees tabled a proposal to amend its "personal necessity" leave policy.

Trustees had been asked to add to the policy a section which states employees may take leave "for compelling personal importance, which may be granted when the emergency aspect is lacking, not to exceed two days. The employee must seek advance permission for such leave."

Although not specifically outlined in the policy proposal, the addition was designed to grant persons of the Jewish faith two holidays, Rosh Hashanah (Sept. 13) and Yom Kippur (Sept. 22).

"After talking with our counsel, we believe this item is in the scope of negotiations," Trustee Dorothy Adams said before she requested the item be tabled at the board meeting late last week.

The district and its 400 teachers have not agreed on a contract for either the 1976-77 or 1977-78 school year. Although agreement has been reached concerning leaves granted, several major issues, including salaries and fringe benefits, have not found accord between the two parties.

Spokesmen for both the district and the Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association, representing the teachers, said they would be willing to reopen the discussions of leaves to possibly include the "compelling personal importance" clause.

Legionnaires May Boycott Millbrae

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Albert Aguilar of the American Legion is so angry at Millbrae's non-support of the San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau that he's planning to cancel more than $25,000 in Millbrae hotel bookings.

The hotel reservations had been made for some of the 12,000 Legionnaires expected to attend the 1978 annual convention. A resident of Foster City and general chairman of the Legion's state convention, Aguilar said he worked with the bureau four years to bring the convention to San Mateo County before winning the bid two years ago.

John Steen, executive director of the bureau, belongs to Post 82 of the Legion.

"It's the biggest thing that ever happened to this county. Those people will spend $1.5 million in rooms, beverages, newspapers, meals and entertainment, Aguilar remarked.

He already has booked 400 room nights at $25 each at the El Rancho Inn and 500 room nights at $30 each at the soon-to-open Ramada Inn in Millbrae.

But, Aguilar said, "If Millbrae can't cooperate, I expect to ask for my deposits back and cancel the reservations."

He added that he also would cancel a number of banquets scheduled at those hotels.

Aguilar was referring to a recent decision of the Millbrae City Council not to increase dues to the bureau from 12 to 15 per cent of the transient occupancy tax collected from visitors. The bureau's board of directors insists that the increase is necessary to offset rising costs and refused to accept a city-offered contract of 12 per cent.

Millbrae council members then reaffirmed their decision not to increase dues — a choice tantamount to pulling out of the bureau.

Millbrae Mayor Art Lepore said today he is upset at being hemmed into a corner.

"They (the bureau) have operated unilaterally. From the whole beginning, there's been no negotiation on the dues. All of a sudden, we find ourselves embroiled in an either/or situation — either we're in or we're out," he commented.

Lepore noted that some cities, namely San Bruno and Half Moon Bay, have disputed the increase in bureau dues.

"I wonder how all the other cities who are not committing feel about the actions of this agency which they created?" he asked.

Millbrae was a leader in the creation of the bureau, he noted. Payment of dues has not always been equal, he said, explaining that Millbrae always has paid 12 per cent of the 6 per cent tax to the bureau and other cities have paid 12 per cent of a 5 per cent tax.

Objected Aguilar, "Are they saying that they don't need a convention bureau? Without a convention bureau, I couldn't have brought the Legion convention here. The convention bureau has traveled all over the state to conventions in San Diego, Fresno, Anaheim and Stockton and made presentations about what San Mateo County could do if the convention were brought here."

In a separate action, Earl Wilms, president of the El Rancho Inn, is sending a letter to Lepore and the council calling for resolution of the "misunderstanding" between the city government and the bureau.

In the letter, Wilms notes that it was partly the efforts of the convention bureau that prompted the El Rancho to draw up plans for an additional 75 rooms. He says the hotel feels "caught in the middle of this controversy and that it is the hotel customer who pays the tax."

Millbrae Chamber of Commerce president Bruce Whitley pointed out that hotel owners objected when the transient occupancy tax was first proposed years ago, but were mollified when cities agreed to earmark the majority of the money for activities that would bring more visitors to the city.

Whitley added that the city's portion of the tax later grew to 88 per cent and is now 100 per cent since none of the tax is being forwarded to the bureau. "We are still collecting the tax and the city is getting the whole thing," Whitley said.

Daring Rescue of Man Above Bruno City Hall

A 26-year-old Burlingame man dangled 50 feet over the San Bruno City Hall for 1 1/2 hours last Tuesday while firemen tried to figure out how to get him down.

Fred Cunningham had been repairing an antenna atop City Hall in a basket extended from his truck broke, cutting off his power and leaving him stranded at 9:30 a.m.

San Bruno firemen tried their 85-foot platform truck first, but firemen, perched in the rescue "arm" of the vehicle, could not get close enough to Cunningham.

South San Francisco firemen were called in with their slightly longer, more flexible platform truck. But one observer noted they only got "close enough to ask what he wanted for lunch."

As the South San Francisco truck maneuvered around an electrical wire on its second attempt, San Bruno Fire Chief Harper Peterson said he was thinking about calling another fire department that has a 100-foot ladder.

He added that other possibilities were calling in a Coast Guard helicopter or having 20 firemen hold a net underneath Cunningham so that he could jump. "The only problem is that our net is full of holes," he said.

On its second try, firemen in the South San Francisco truck got close enough to toss a rope to Cunningham. According to their instructions, he lowered it to the roof, where other firemen tied on a safety harness.

After putting on the safety harness and hooking it to the rope, Cunningham shinned down the rope into the platform of the rescue truck while school children across the street cheered.
